Leaning tower of Bruno

Whether it was the impending eclipse of the sun, rumblings of nearby road construction equipment, all the moisture this year, or just a gradual settling of the earth and foundations is not known, but the Searle Grain Co. "B" elevator at Bruno took on this 15-foot list to the north Saturday noon. Joe Langen, Searle Grain Co. superintendent for the Humboldt area, in foreground, ponders the situation. This week a crew started removing the 18,000 bushels of grain and it is expected to start straightening the elevator in a few days. Agent Norbert Torborg said there had been a slight slant to the elevator for some time. CNR trains were moving slowly past the elevator to avoid any further settling.

Above is shown a snowplane, every part of which, including the propeller was built by Paul Honatzis, proprietor of the Palace Garage, Bruno, with the assistance of his three sons, Bill, Bob, and John. The engine is placed directly on the frame and drives a six foot propeller by three V belts. With snowplanes which he built previously, Mr. Honatzis found difficulty in negotiating high hills or heavy snow banks, but the present machine, the owner writes, will run along a practically snowless road.

Over 30 trucks lined up to unload at the Pool elevator during the 1940's. This was the quota system.
