THE DEBUT NOVEL FROM K.R. BYGGDIN

Twenty-seven-year-old Isaac Funk is broke, drifting, and questioning his lonely existence on the East Coast. Having left his conservative hometown of Newfield, Manitoba full of piss and vinegar, Isaac's dreams of studying music and embracing queer culture in Halifax have gradually fizzled out. When his grandfather dies and leaves him a substantial inheritance, Isaac is pulled back to the Prairies for the first time in ten years. Finding his father, Abe, just as enigmatic and unreachable as always and his extended family more fragmented than ever, Isaac begins to wonder if there will ever be a place for him in Newfield. Is the prodigal son home for good, or is it time to cut and run once more?

ADVANCE PRAISE FOR Wonder World

"Miriam Toews meets J.D. Salinger in this poignant and sassy coming-of-age novel." –Jacqueline Dumas, author of *The Heart Begins Here

"Wonder World is a laugh-riot punctuated with gut-punches . . . The queer possibilities this book breathes into the prairies is welcome as a hard rain after a dry season." –John Elizabeth Stintzi, author of *Vanishing Monuments

"Isaac Funk is one hell of a narrator! K.R. Byggdin wrote a beautiful book that explores the complex relationship between queer identity and conservative beliefs." –Hasan Namir, author of *God in Pink

K.R. BYGGDIN grew up on the Prairies and now lives on the East Coast. Their writing has received support from the Canada Council for the Arts and has appeared in anthologies and journals across Canada, the UK, and New Zealand. They are an alum of the Writers' Federation of Nova Scotia's Alistair MacLeod Mentorship Program and the Banff Centre's Emerging Writers Intensive and recently completed studies in English and Creative Writing at Dalhousie University. Wonder World is their first novel.

Sharing the Landscape with Cougars

Cougars once ranged across the prairies but were displaced to more remote mountain regions as settlement advanced. Over the past two decades they have been expanding their range eastward and are recolonizing much of their former range. There are recent confirmed reports from as far east as Missouri and Tennessee.

In Saskatchewan, cougars are a natural part of the landscape, especially in the Cypress Hills region. These animals are a sign of healthy ecosystems and sightings often go unreported.

While your chances of seeing a cougar are slim, people need to be aware of their existence. Although attacks on humans are rare, you need to practice caution and safety when outdoors in cougar country.

If you encounter a cougar

- Make sure it knows you are not potential prey – do not run, stand up, make yourself look big, shout loudly and throw something to distract the animal. Back away to a safe distance and maintain eye contact.

- If a cougar does make contact, fight back, use any weapon that you can and don't give up. Never play dead with a cougar. After the animal has left, keep watching for it until you reach safety.
- Cougars may view children as prey targets due to their small size and quick movements. In the event of a cougar encounter, pick up your children immediately.

Living in cougar country

If you live in cougar country, here are a few guidelines to follow:

- Do not feed wildlife. Feeding wildlife can attract animals that may be prey for cougars, thus attracting cougars to your yard.
- Avoid feeding pets outside. Pet food can attract cougars to your yard. When possible, keep pets indoors at night, as pets make easy prey for cougars.
- Deer are prime prey for cougars and they will follow deer that hang around or live in a yard site. Try to make your yard as deer proof as possible.
- Dense vegetation makes great hiding places for cougars. Remove vegetation that could be a hiding place, making your yard less friendly for cougars.
- Enclose the base around porches or decks and keep out-buildings closed – cougars will make use of such spaces to den or cache food.
- Outdoor lighting and motion-sensitive lighting is a deterrent. Lights also make approaching cougars more visible.
- Keep a close eye on your children when they are playing outside. Bring children in before dusk when cougars begin to hunt. Teach them what to do if they encounter a cougar.

Cougars and livestock

- There have been few confirmed cases of livestock killed by cougars in Saskatchewan. However, landowners have the right in Saskatchewan to kill any predator, including cougars, on their own land if they feel that such an animal is posing a threat to their family, property or livestock.
- Landowners may also designate this authority to an immediate family member, employee or to a licensed trapper.
- If a cougar is taken under this authority, the local conservation officer must be notified and will determine how best to dispose of the carcass.
- Assistance may also be available from predator control specialists on contract to Saskatchewan Crop Insurance Corporation at 1-888-935-0000.

Cougar facts

- Cougars are the most evasive and secretive of all wildlife species in Saskatchewan and generally travel in low light conditions to move or stalk their prey.
- Cougars are the largest feline of three native cat species to Saskatchewan, the others being bobcat and lynx.
- The cougar's primary prey is deer. However, they are known to prey on livestock and pets. It will also feed on elk, rabbits, beaver, porcupines, raccoons and grouse.
- Cougars have large home ranges and males can travel over 50 kilometres in one day.
- Cougars will generally give birth to two or three kittens.

- During late spring and summer, one to two-year old cougars become independent of their mothers. While attempting to find a home range, these young cougars may roam widely in search of unoccupied territory. This is when cougars are most likely to conflict with humans.

If you see a cougar, or if you have an aggressive encounter with a cougar on your property, contact your local Ministry of Environment office or call the TIP line, 24-hours a day, at 1-800-667-7561 or from your SaskTel cell Phone at #5555.

PROCEEDS TO THE BRUNO LIONS CLUB

Bruno School Sr. Girls Volleyball Bottle Fundraiser

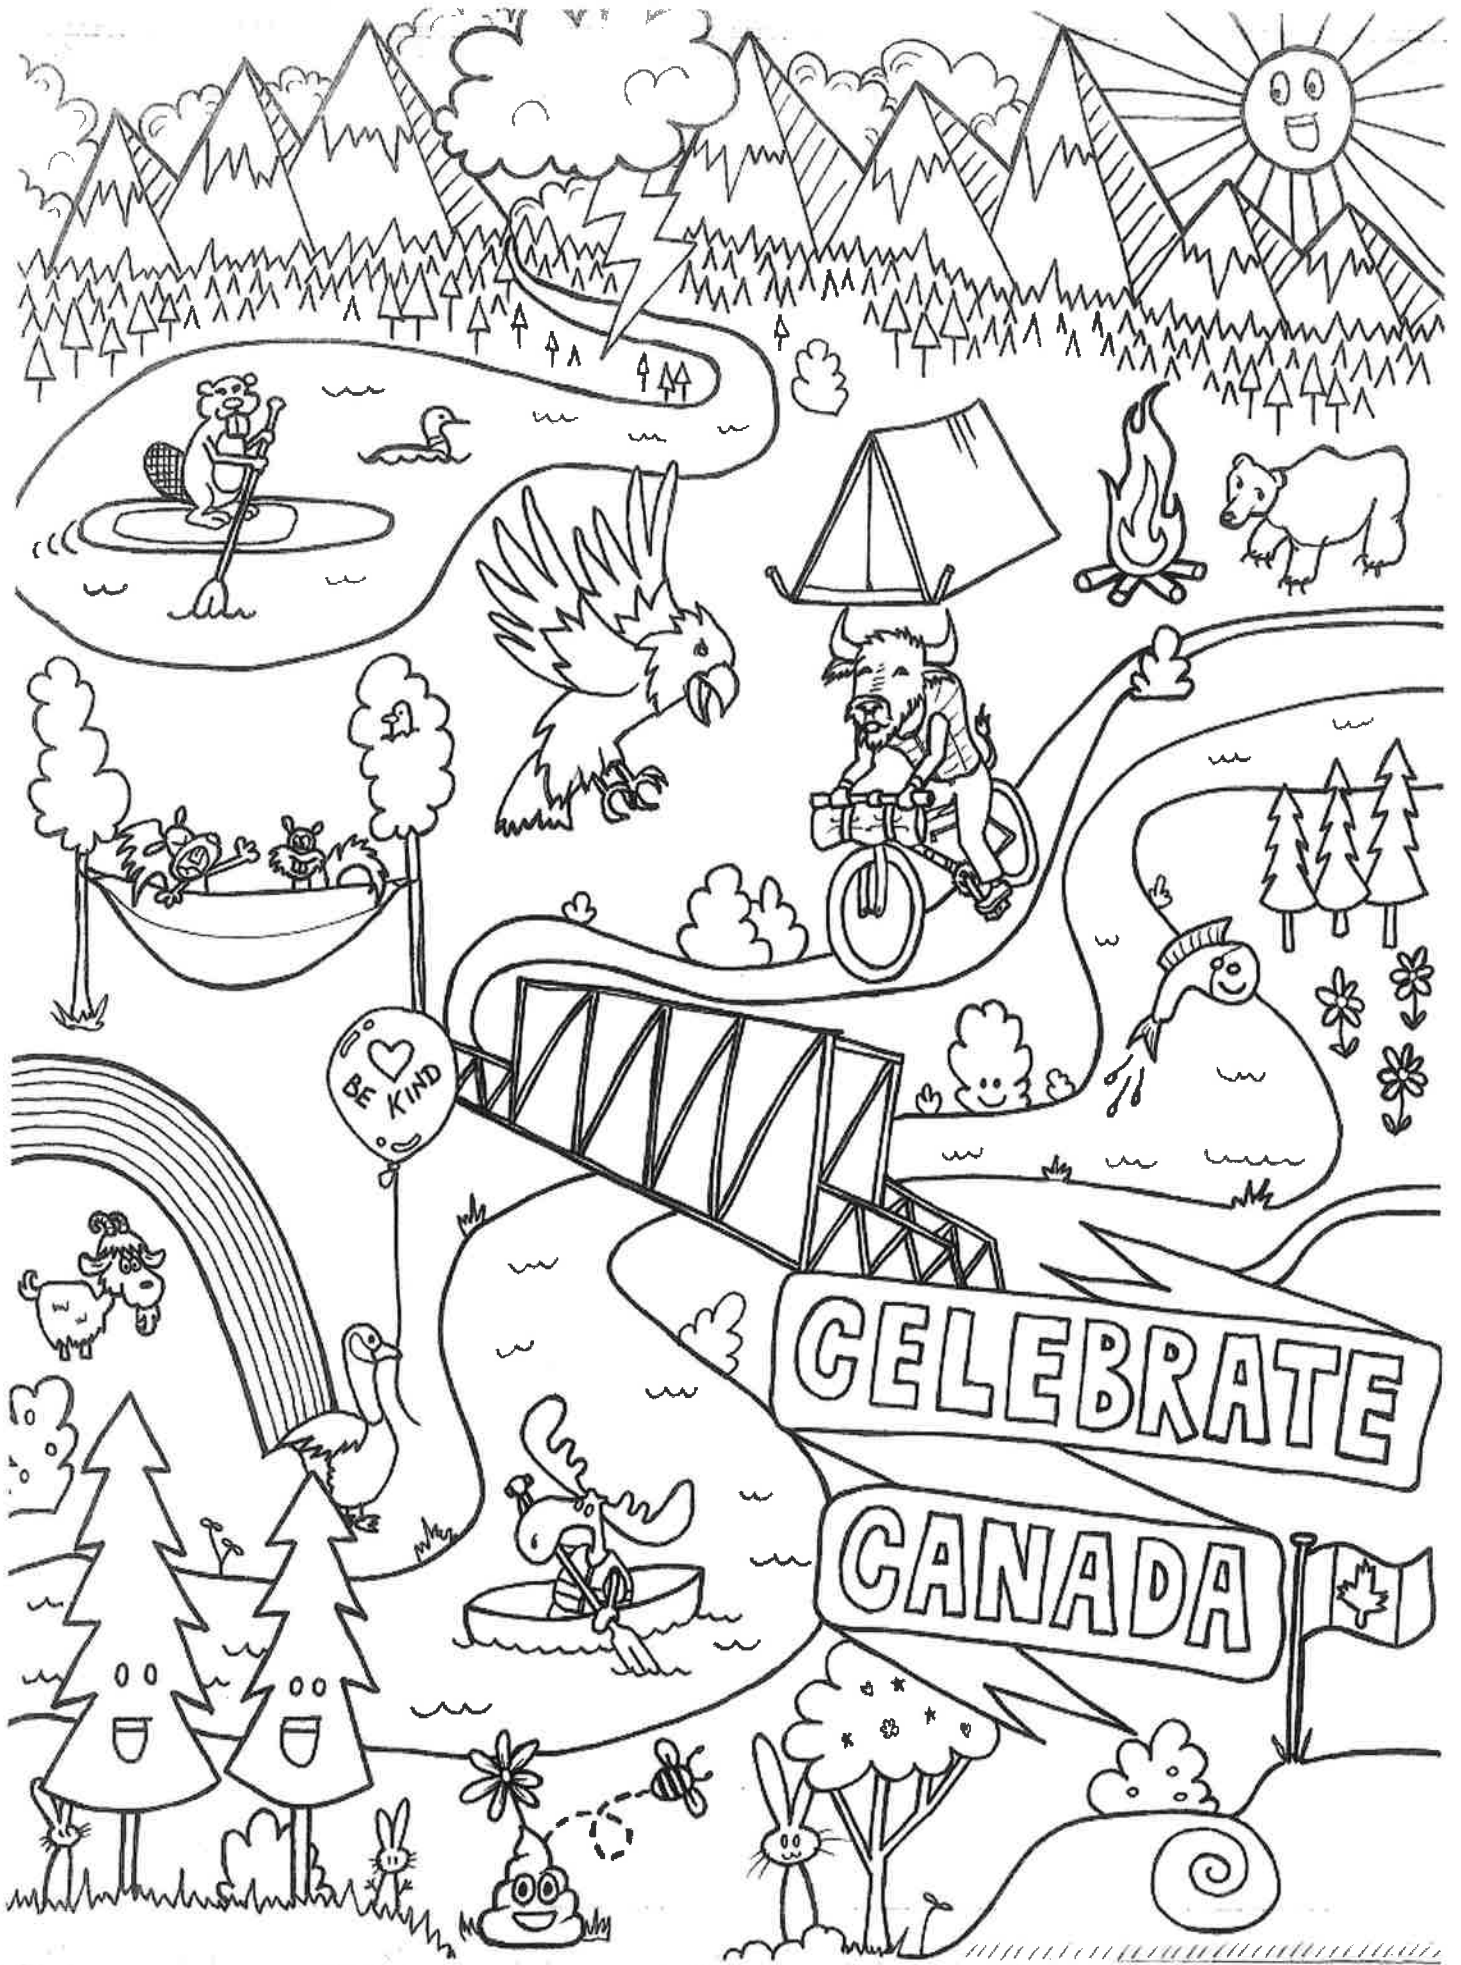

The Bruno School Sr. Girls volleyball team has an amazing opportunity to participate in a Youth Exchange Program with another girl's volleyball team from Halifax, NS. The Halifax team will be coming to Saskatchewan August 28-September 5, 2022. Our Bruno Girls will be heading to Halifax October 3-11, 2022. The YMCA is sponsoring a large portion of the expenses but not all, so it is up to our team to cover the remaining cost.

As a fundraiser we have set up a DROP & GO account at the Humboldt Sarcen.

Use "Bruno Central School 306-369-2541" to find our account. We will be closing the account August 31, 2022.

Thank you in advance to anyone that donates!

If you have any questions or need clarification please call Carla Jule 306-369-7970 or Lisa Weiman 306-369-7807
